Chuck Lewis specializes in providing client research to support various facets of bankruptcy work for creditors' services. He has over 15 years of management experience in numerous industries including distribution, construction, industrial and food services, and inspection services. His previous responsibilities included profit and loss management, strategic planning, and budget/forecast development.

Prior to joining Gavin/Solmonese, Chuck held senior financial management positions where he was responsible for the profitability and positive cash flow of entrepreneurial and fast-growing companies. He served as the controller for QSL-Plus/CONAM, Inc., a multi-state industrial inspection company specializing in nondestructive testing, and more recently as the controller for Pro-Tech Floors, LLC, a commercial flooring contractor. Chuck was also responsible for the operational restructuring of these organizations to meet a high rate of growth, as well as evaluating infrastructural and personnel needs. He was responsible for the successful implementation of improved policy and procedures with an emphasis on improving collections and financing ability. Chuck's prior bankruptcy and insolvency experience was obtained at Parente Randolph where he was an accounting specialist.
